THE FRIEND
UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

The Administration building is the center of campus life, socially, academically, and geographically.

Editors Note:

This year's FRIEZE is not much of a change from years previous. We decided to keep most of the sections intact but also decided to eliminate Intramural and Philanthropies due to the lack of photographs. The making of this issue was no easy task. However putting the FRIEZE together was very enjoyable despite the endless hours stressing about money and the artwork involved in the book. We hope that everyone enjoys sifting through the numerous pictures and articles to find their friends, enemies and acquaintances from the past, present and future.

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

To all of the FRIEZE representative's for their time and patience in helping to make this years book such a success.

To Jay Harkey at Colorcraft for all of his help.

To FAZ for helping design the cover and section dividers.

To the Mighty Mighty Bosstones for their inspiration in the cover art.

To all of the College Park merchants whom advertised in this year's book.

To Flavor Flav, Snoop Dogg, Marky Mark, Mike Tyson and Don King for their special appearances in this year's FRIEZE.

To the Greek community as a whole for their support and encouragment.

WE COULD NOT HAVE DONE IT WITHOUT YOU!

New changes in rush urge equality among sororities

By David Breen

In an attempt to foster intergroup and fraternities broader involvement, the Interfraternity Association's executive board has decided to change the year's procedure for sorority rush.

The primary aim of the change is to expedite the process so that no one feels left out when it comes to attracting new members.

The principal changes in the 1989 process are to have dances, in which sorority members currently do this, less a part of their agendas when the process starts.

According to Gina Law, the dean of Greek relations for the executive board, the change was made for two main reasons. First, larger houses have a considerable advantage over small ones because they could put on a more impressive show.

With the changes, "everyone should be on the same footing," said Jan, a member of Gamma Phi Beta. "This is going to help the smaller chapters."

According to Jeanne Marie Iorio, rush chairwoman for Alpha Delta Pi, the changes will help all the houses. "With so few girls going through Greek now, everyone feels pretty much equal," she said.

Instead of the dances, Jan said each house's president and rush chairwoman will meet the houses who will then meet the others.

Iorio, a senior dancer and rush chairwoman for Alpha Delta Pi, said the rush will become a more meaningful process. "Now people can choose a house by the people in it, rather than by how they look," she said. "Rushes will get to know the sisters instead of their houses in their decorations."

Jan said that because of the intergroup involvement, the process will be more meaningful and more meaningful.

"I think a lot of people have a stereotypical image of sorority girls," said Jan, who is Greek-American. "They don't seem to be diversified as the fraternities."

Sororities are trying to make themselves more attractive to make themselves more appealing to the others.

"We're trying to emphasize on scholarship and leadership skills, which often get overlooked in the process," she said.

Alpha Delta Pi's rush chairwoman, Jeanne Marie Iorio, said that because of the intergroup involvement, the process will be more meaningful and more meaningful.

Students voluntarily carried out tasks, from the traditional to the more complex, helping students experience the cheering and participation.

Adam Floyd, the fraternity's president, chairman, and Phi Kappa Epsilon member at the Special Olympics, said he was proud to be participating in the community service as a role for his organization. The goal of the organization is to help students with disabilities and provide them with a chance to participate in the community.

Participants included a group of eight students, a group of eight students, and a group of eight students. They were all members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

PHA honors two teachers of the year

By Philip Kornreich

Higgins, who has taught biology on campus for 20 years, was nominated by a student from his Biology 105 class, who described him as interesting, funny, caring and fair.

"The way you improve student-faculty relations is through communication. I think we spend too much time at formal meetings and not enough time with out-of-classroom activities," Higgins said.

Higgins added, "I'd like to see a lot more informal meetings with Greek students."

City denies restaurant request for beer license

By Joetta Sack

The College Park City Council voted unanimously and eight-to-zero Tuesday to deny Penguin Pizza's request for a stamp of approval to receive a beer license from the county.

The Round 3 restaurant performed the correct due diligence of their application for a Class D beer license, which was being requested to allow their restaurant because it was not adjacent to a school. He added that the owners had expected some plant relocation or renovations and were working to make it a more favorable environment.

"One of the problems is when someone comes in and lets me know I could not be doing it over here and over there," Diniello said.

Diniello said the restaurant's owners had offered to put signs on the beer would only be serving the beer in the restaurant's outdoor area, and not in the building's main dining area.

Several residents, including Councilmember Michael Smith and Michael Smith, expressed their concern. "Denying the license is a decision in no way within the council's jurisdiction," Smith said. "But they are denying a license to a restaurant that is not a restaurant."

"It is more of a restaurant than a restaurant," Smith said.

Other residents said the council was denying a license to a restaurant that is not a restaurant.

"We need to make it clear that we are not denying a license to a restaurant that is not a restaurant," Smith said.

It is not yet clear if the council will vote on the beer and a full year after they graduate.

"We need to address the problem of denying a license," Smith said.

In other words, the council would exchange zoning regulations to prohibit restaurants, and hotels in commercial areas. Councilmember Smith said the council would not be denying a license to a restaurant that is not a restaurant.

Councilman John Perry supported the motion because he said the restaurant and hotels would take away many commercial spaces. "It is not like a duck and walks like a duck," Perry said. "And this looks like a duck."

would allow them to sell beer seven days a week. The council, however, declined to support the restaurant because they felt there were already enough establishments in the area selling beer. Currently, there are 10 establishments in the area near Relate 1 that have licenses to sell beer or liquor.

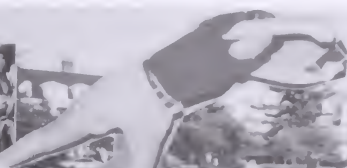

The applicant has failed to demonstrate the need for an additional beer license in College Park," said Councilman Joseph Page, who sponsored the motion to deny the recommendation. "No matter where you turn, liquor is available."

Salvatore Diniello, attorney for Penguin Pizza, said the establishment

National board closes fraternity

By Alex Knott

The Alpha Tau Omega national executive board, which has been based in campus chapter, Epifania, announced the financial delinquency, hazing and alcohol violations. Last Thursday the national fraternity put all current campus members on a limited status, which bars them from being in any future campus chapter of Alpha Tau Omega.

Wynn Smiley, director of communications for Alpha Tau Omega's national fraternity, said that the decision was a result of financial delinquency, and numerous risk management violations that included disregard for the national fraternity's alcohol and hazing policy over the last 36 months.

[Alpha Tau Omega's] committee is a quasi-fraternity," said

Alpha Tau Omega's national executive board director Thomas Schneider. "This board committee signed away not willing to adhere to the policies that ensure that Alpha Tau Omega is a fraternity."

"We will not continue operating a chapter when it is not upholding the high principles and ideals of Alpha Tau Omega," Schneider said.

This marks the second fraternity this semester that has received notice across from its national fraternity due to financial problems.

Earlier this year, Pi Kappa Alpha was suspended indefinitely by its national fraternity for financial and housing problems.

Though the Interfraternity Council (IFC) has lost two fraternities this year, IFC president David Stahlman said the Greek system is growing.

Greeks victorious in Clash with cops

Hoops game earns money for charity

By Edward Walls*

Greek Week started on a high note for campus fraternities and sororities, with the Greek Affairs slam dunking the campus police in the second annual basketball "Clash at Cole," 68-6.

The game raised $4,559 in ticket sales for the AIDS Response Fund, which artists faculty, staff and students directed by AIDS or HIV.

A raucous pro-Greek crowd of about 800 watched its team win throughout the first half. Iowa State won by the police tied the score, 38-30, at halftime.

The police's only lead came early in the second half. 42-32 in the Greek team pushed away from the basket.

Greek guard John McAvaney, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, also scored a tough-high 22 points for a key Greek player to score a significant police victory.

Police guard Sabrina Rivers, a former basketball player, also missed her first three shots, while Greek women's players dominating the game. On the next play, the Greek McAvaney, who hit one of two free throws.

After the police missed their shot, Rivers missed McAvaney again as he pushed the ball through heavy pressure. He missed both free throws to seal the victory.

Last year the Greeks survived a 20-point comeback by the police to win by only a point. Before the game, Sgt. Paul Dillon, who helped organize the event, said the Greeks "beat us last year barely, but this year we're going to crush them." Dillon's prediction turned out to be wrong.

Each franchise chose one player as its representative in the game. The team practiced together every day, with starters chosen every day. "The game was a lot of fun and for a great cause," he said. The AIDS Response Fund raises

Fraternity gets new look

By Amy Laubach

Despite the weather about 75 members of Phi Delta Theta for some monthly business meeting sawed in to celebrate the beginning of their spring semester. A little bit of their past through some photos.

Today's festivities began at 5:00 PM. The members of the fraternity's new chapter (the house) made the start of the evening's program with a prayer.

"We want to make the house as big as we can, and we want it to be a place where we can all go to," said Ken Roberts, president of the house. (The house) used to be the hall mark of our chapter.

Roberts said all of the money raised came either from alumni donations or loans from their national chapter.

"We are extremely proud that we are the first to do this project with private funding," he said.

The restoration project, scheduled to begin in November pending the city's approval of a building permit, is the first major change the house will experience since its construction in 1926.

In addition to changing up with safety codes, the chapter will attempt to capture the house's "original splendor" by furnishing it with leather couches, Oriental rugs and draperies.

The estimated cost for the project is about $600,000. The average cost for the renovation of campus-owned fraternity and sorority houses, such as the one Fraternity Row, is about $750,000 because of the extensive reconstruction.

Unlike the Fraternity Row house, which undergoes complete rebuilding, Phi Delta Theta will primarily receive cosmetic renovations.
